

GTN XPRESS PIPELINE

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR GUIDE

TC Energy is full steam ahead with plans to expand its Gas Transmission Northwest (GTN) pipeline by 250,000 dekatherms per day (Dth/d). For context, one dekatherm would provide enough gas to service five average-sized households fully; so TC Energy's expansion is equivalent to the amount of gas necessary to service 1.2 million households each day. That's an awful lot of gas to be piping into a region that is clearly moving away from its reliance on fracked gas. The increased fracked gas could feed proposed power plants and petrochemical facilities in the Pacific Northwest.

GTN, which is wholly owned by TC Pipelines, operates a 1,353-mile-long interstate natural gas pipeline system that transports West Canadian Sedimentary Basin (WCSB) and Rocky Mountain-source natural gas to third-party natural gas pipelines and markets in Washington, Oregon, and California. It originates near Kingsgate, British Columbia, and terminates near Malin, OR.

This expansion project is clearly not in the public interest, and we're working hard to make sure that the public knows about this.

What is a Letter to the Editor?

Letters to the editor (LTEs) are important for three reasons. First, if a media outlet receives a lot of LTEs about a specific topic, they are more likely to cover that topic. This makes our rallies and other media events more successful. Second, besides the obituaries, they are the most read part of the newspaper. Third, public officials check letters to the editor to see where their constituents are on certain issues. This informs them of what stance they should take.

Let's build momentum in opposition to the GTN Xpress Pipeline expansion by publishing hundreds of letters in newspapers across WA, OR and CA!

Quick tips:

1. Keep it short and simple. Write a letter that is 250 words or less. Focus on one aspect of why you oppose this per letter. You can submit multiple letters, or have your friends submit them for you!
2. Make it personal. Why do you care? Use your experience as a community member and connect with the local audience.
3. End with a call to action: We need the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to deny the permit for GTN Xpress because the project is contrary to the public interest.

Talking points: stick to 1-2 of these per letters:

- TC Energy claims that its GTN Xpress pipeline expansion is needed to meet rising gas demand in the Pacific Northwest when the region is weaning itself off of polluting fossil fuels.
- Expanding GTN would emit millions of metric tons of CO2 equivalent into the atmosphere every year which is inconsistent with Washington's and Oregon's laws that require decreasing emissions by 95% and 75%, respectively, by 2050.
- Increasing the pressure on the GTN pipeline, which was originally constructed in the 1960s, is dangerous.
- The GTN Xpress Pipeline project would leak fracked gas, which is primarily the potent greenhouse gas methane, into the environment, threatening public health and our climate.
- Constructing new fracked gas infrastructure would lock in fossil fuel use for another 30 years.
- If demand doesn't reach the level projected, GTN can ask FERC for permission to raise rates across the board. So current GTN customers - even those who did not contract for the increased capacity - could be on the hook to pay for the project down the line.

Sample letter:

Start with something personal- how does this project affect you? Why do you care?

Fill in with 1-2 of the talking points above.

End with a call to action: Tell the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to deny the permit for GTN XPress because the project is contrary to the public interest

Example:

Dear Editor,

I have felt first-hand how the extreme heat and wildfires have affected my community. It seems to get worse every year. Our region is taking important steps to reduce fossil fuel use - so I was shocked to learn about TC Energy's proposal to greatly increase the capacity of a major fracked gas pipeline that runs through Idaho, Oregon, and Washington.

The GTN XPress project would add enough new fracked gas to service 1.2 million homes. Our region is wisely weaning itself off of dirty fracked gas: let's not expand pipelines now. The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission will soon make a decision on whether to approve or deny the misguided GTN XPress. Join me in calling on the federal government to deny the permit and choose clean and healthy, renewable energy instead.

Thank you.

How to Submit:

You can submit the same letter to multiple newspapers. Include your contact information: full name, address, phone number, and email address. They will only print your name.

Please do not submit LTE's into papers in communities you do not live in.
